Awarded Accreditation from the Joint Commission

(GLENDALE, CA – March 24, 2009) – By demonstrating compliance with The Joint Commission's national standards for health care quality and safety, Verdugo Hills Hospital (VHH) has earned accreditation for another three years.

The Joint Commission conducted an unannounced, on-site evaluation of VHH on October 28-30, 2008. The accreditation award recognizes VHH's dedication to complying with the Joint Commission's quality and safety standards on a continuous basis.

“Joint Commission accreditation is key to demonstrating Verdugo Hills Hospital's commitment to quality and safe patient care to our community, physicians, employees and volunteers,” said Mark Lueken, Director of Quality & Risk Management at VHH. “The surveyors were also impressed with the cleanliness of our facility and the friendliness of our staff.”

“This accreditation is recognition of our staff's daily commitment to provide safe, highly competent medical care with compassion and professionalism,” said Len LaBella, VHH CEO and President.
